SOMETHING BESIDES NEEDLEWORK.

"It is wrong to suppose," Mrs. Linch continued, "that the display made by women will be confined to fancy work, painting and such goods. That impression does our board great injustice. We want and expect the women to make a display of all the goods in the production of which they take a part; for, after all, it is the workingwoman in whom we are most interested. It the plans of our board be adopted, the work will take a much wider scope than has heretofore been contemplated. We expect to have a delegate or representative in each county or Congressional district to arouse the proper interest and keep up the enthusiasm until the fair is opened. The lady managers also intend to de everything they can to make the common school exhibit and will use our influence to the exposition. It will scarcely be denied," Mrs. Linch added, "that women have more than the men to do with shapping the minds of the young and with molding their thoughts in the school children. For that reason we all feel a special interest in the common school exhibit and will use our influence to make the display a credit to our educational institutions. It is not anticipated that anything more than the results of the common school exhibit and will use our influence to make the display a credit to our educational institutions. It is not anticipated that anything more than the results of the common school exhibit and will use our influence to make the display a credit to our educational institutions. It is not anticipated without a great feature of the common school exhibit and will use our influence to make the display a credit to our educational institutions. It is not anticipated without a great feature of the common school exhibit and willu shown, but even these will be very in-teresting. Our plass have not been pre-pared without a great deal of trouble. We find it impossible to draft a plan that will be acceptable in all the States, on account of the difference of condi-tions. A general scheme has, therefore, been arranged to be recommended to the different States, subject to such changes as may be found necessary."

In Memory of a Good Man.

The Knoxville Journal, in its report of the funeral of Mr. Alexander Warner, son-in-law of Mr. D. C. List, gives the remarks of Rev. Dr. Sutherland, pastor of the church of which Mr. Warner was an active member. Dr. Sutherland said, in part:

It is just three years since he came among us a stranger—a little less than three years since he came to Knoxville. It was but a little while, however, until the good people of Knoxville began to feel that in Mr. Warner the city had made an acquisition indeed, and that in him would be found one earnestly concerned for the best interests of the community in things spiritual as well as in things natural. Mr. Warner rapidly won his way into the confidence and esteem of very many of the good people of the city by his diligence, assidity and correctness in business, assidity and correctness in business, assidity and correctness in business, the gentleness and kindness in all his intercourse with others in social life, and his conscientious and faithful performance of his religious duties which fell under the eyes of his fellow-men. To the supposed to have been the smallest man who ever lived. He was stated in the consciention of the correctness in business.

Bebe is supposed to have been the smallest man who ever lived. He was born by a peasant woman in Lorrsine just 150 years ago, and was called Bebe because the first few years of his life he could articulate only "b-b." The day of his birth Bebe was smaller than his mother's hand.

Ten days afterwards he was taken to the village church to be baptized, in his mother's wooden shoe, because he was too tiny to be carried safely in her arms. During the next six months the same wooden shoeserved as Bebe's crib.

COURT DWARF.

When Bebe was shout seven years old King Stanislaus Lescxinski, of Poland, made him "court dwarf." At the time of his introduction to court life Bebe was just twenty inches tall, and weighed eight pounds. He never grew larger.

It corrects the tainted breath, stops the offensive discharges, heals the irritated throat and nose, leaving the head clear, and smell and taste ing the head clear, and smell and taste unimpaired.
